SOME MOMENTS FINDS THEIR WAY BACK

THE MOMENT

SOME MOMENTS
LAST MUCH LONGER
THAN 90 MINUTES.

On June 22, 1986, Argentina faced England at the Azteca Stadium.

In the second half, Diego Maradona took the ball and began a run that became eternal.

10.6 seconds later, the ball was in the net.

The clock read 16:09 in Argentina.

THE PLAY

10.6 SECONDS.
An unforgettable run.

THE GOAL

AND THEN,
THE GOAL.

The second that stayed with us forever.

FROM THE PLAY TO THE WINE

SOME MOMENTS
DESERVE TO BE BOTTLED.

16:09 was created to celebrate one of those moments.

An Argentinian Malbec made to bring to the table the emotion, the identity and the memory of a play that belongs to all of us.
